Doonesbury

by Garry Trudeau

Doonesbury has managed to be articulate, abrasive, political, compassionate, misunderstood, misprinted and outrageous – but one thing it's never been is complacent. Garry Trudeau's creation has chronicled American history and culture in a parallel universe. And through it all, Doonesbury has always been honest, entertaining and way, way cool.

Notable: Pulitzer Prize for Editorial Cartooning, 1975. National Cartoonists Society Award for Best Newspaper Strip, 1994, and Cartoonist of the Year, 1995.

Garfield

by Jim Davis

What else can be said about the world's most famous – er, not to mention fattest and laziest – cat? He's just a wise-cracking, nap-taking, coffee-guzzling, lasagna-loving, Monday-hating, dog-punting, spider-whacking, mailman-mauling, fat feline. And he is the most beloved strip in the world, read in more than 2,400 newspapers, with a readership of 200 million.

Notable: National Cartoonists Society Award for Best Newspaper Strip (Humor), 1982 and 1986.

For Better or For Worse

by Lynn Johnston

Since its debut in 1979, For Better or For Worse has touched comic strip readers as few cartoons ever do. Lynn Johnston's eye for detail and her uncanny sense of what real parents and children struggle with daily are a big part of her success. The comic strip now appears in 1,550 newspapers in the U.S. and Canada. Read by people of all ages, the award-winning For Better or For Worse deals honestly with both the lighthearted and the serious, and to many readers, the Pattersons feel like family!

Notable: National Cartoonists Society Cartoonist of the Year Award, 1985, and for Best Newspaper Strip, 1991.

FoxTrot

by Bill Amend

FoxTrot is centered around the chaotic Fox family with its three kids, two parents and a perpetually hungry pet iguana. While just about any topic is possible fodder, the humor in FoxTrot tends toward the geeky, with occasional forays into the super-geeky. FoxTrot began its published life April 10, 1988, as a seven-day-a-week newspaper strip. In 2007, Bill cut the strip back to Sundays-only in order to free up time for other things and to generally preserve his remaining sanity.

Close to Home

by John McPherson

Close to Home revels in its wackiness. There is no pretense here – John's offbeat, oddball characters turn up in familiar places, but their actions are always hilarious and unexpected. There's a lot of humor to be found in odd situations, and John McPherson boldly explores these bizarre scenarios with clever art and gusto.

Notable: John has published numerous Close to Home collections, as well as yearly Day-to-Day calendars, a children's book, a book of medical cartoons, a line of award-winning greeting cards and many other gift items.

Get Fuzzy

by Darby Conley

At the center of this warm and fuzzy romp is Rob Wilco, a single, mild-mannered ad executive and guardian of anthropomorphic scamps Bucky and Satchel. Bucky is a temperamental cat who clearly wears the pants in this eccentric household. Satchel is a gentle pooch who tries to remain neutral, but frequently ends up on the receiving end of Bucky's mischief. Together, this unlikely trio endures all the trials and tribulations of a typical family ... more or less.

Lio

by Mark Tatulli

The world of Lio is filled with the extraordinary – monsters under the bed, wild reptile pets, robot inventions, weird science – but it's all commonplace for this most uncommon first-grader. Mark Tatulli renders this pantomime strip in pen-and-ink style, giving the artwork a dark, spidery feel to match the strip's dark humor. Lio explores the twisted realm of a kid's imagination – at once bizarre, creepy and fun.

Pooch Café

by Paul Gilligan

Pooch Café is the story of a cheese-loving, squirrel-fearing, kibble-desiring, break-dancing, toilet-drinking mutt named Poncho. Dogs, like certain barflies, want to go where everybody knows their name (other than the vet's office). So they gather at the Pooch Café to compare notes on such weighty issues as avoiding baths, zebra-flavored kibble, toilet breath and the construction of a giant catapult with which to hurl all the Earth's cats into the sun.

by Lalo Alcaraz

La Cucaracha is a unique strip that provides a view of the world through the sharp, satiric lens of its young Latino characters and the fertile mind of acclaimed creator Lalo Alcaraz. Growing up on the U.S./Mexico border gave Lalo a dual outlook on life. He's not Mexican enough for his relatives in Mexico, and not American enough for some in the U.S.A. It's this double-edged "Spanglish" attitude that fuels the jalapeño-biting satirical observations in his daily comic strip.

Monty

by Jim Meddick

Monty spoofs suburbia, trashes tacky TV shows and offers absurdist commentary on everything from hosing down spider monkeys to the latest conspiracy theory. "I've tried to create the comic strip equivalent of 'Monty Python's Flying Circus,'" says Jim Meddick. "The name 'Monty' is a nod to the influence that show had on my humor. In my cartoon, just about anything can happen – this way, the ideas and characters always stay fresh."

Ann Coulter

Love her or loathe her, you can't be neutral about Ann Coulter. She pushes all the right buttons to infuriate liberals and delight conservatives. Her political commentary on current issues, featuring her trademark hard-right tilt, is full of sarcasm and hyperbole, but also cogent reasonings. She takes great glee in pushing the envelope and making mountains out of molehills, all the while backing her occasionally outrageous claims with wit and solid legal knowledge. Coulter loves this quote from the English newspaper The Guardian: "She has succeeded in driving to fury U.S. liberals, the people she baits for sport." She has high visibility because of her frequent TV appearances (The Tonight Show, The Today Show, The O'Reilly Factor and other Fox talk shows), her best-selling books and her speaking tours.

KENKEN

KENKEN puzzles consist of either a 4x4 (easy) or 6x6 (challenging) grid of boxes divided into "cages," marked by bold outlines. As in Sudoku, all numbers one through four in an easy puzzle, or one through six in a challenging one, must be used without repetition in each row and column. The difference is that all numbers in each cage must combine, using the denoted math operation, to produce the target number in the top-left corner.

PET Disaster

By Dr. Marty Becker and Gina Spadaford Universal Click

Hurricanes, earthquakes, floods, tornadoes, wildfires and even man-made disasters have brought home to us a crisis that can happen at any time, in any community.

Just as you can't leave preparing for your human family members to chance, you need a plan to ensure the safety of your pets. Here are some steps to get you started:

Make a plan. Prepare for all possibilities, including that you may be away from home when disaster strikes. Get to know your neighbors, and be prepared to help each other out from local resources.
